Marco, the UK's largest manufacturer of Steel Wire Cable Tray, and uPVC Cable Management Company, has made a further three key appointments to support the company's continued growth and expansion plans for 2010.

Carl Potts, Simon Kowalski and Paul Mason have joined the national sales team, lead by Marco Sales Director, Paul Diggins. Focusing on the Midlands, Southern and Scottish regions respectively, the three new team members bring a wealth of experience to the company, each with a strong background in electrical installation product sales.

Paul Diggins said: "These three individuals will add significant weight to our external sales team through their various backgrounds and experience. Coupled with the additional resources we have put in place within our internal sales team, the key focus will be on driving the increased specification of Marco products across the regions."

Marco has enjoyed steady growth following its launch in 2003 and has demonstrated an ongoing commitment to develop its product ranges through expanding its main lines, whilst offering many innovative labour-saving solutions to the electrical installer.

Paul continued: "The Marco brand is becoming a well recognised one by electrical contractors and distributors alike, who appreciate the many benefits associated with our products and are also keen to support us as a UK manufacturer.

"It is important that we continue to deliver on our commitments to our growing customer base, whilst maintaining high levels of Marco product and brand awareness, which our recent appointments will most certainly help us to achieve."
